Evergreen Started Out With The Name of Legs, Va.

The golrious town of Evergreen, Va., one of Appomattox County's finest localities, was not always known as Evergreen. It now develops that when the railroad first came through this area, and a name had to be assigned for the first post office at Evergreen, the name of the post office was:

Legs, Virginia.

How come such a name, remains to be revealed.

Recent communications between present postmaster of Evergreen, and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. John Kent Hamilton, with the Federal Archives in Washington, D. C., resulted in the above information.

Incidently, the Hamiltons, father and son, have put in most of the total time as postmasters at Evergreen.

Here is the official record, from the Archives Department and the Post Office Department, Washington, D. C., about Evergreen, Va.:

"Established as Legs, on February 18, 1854.

"Name changed to Evergreen, on June 30, 1854.
